

Doctor of Jurisprudence (JD)

Because Lincoln Memorial University Duncan School of Law (the “Law School”) is approved by the American Bar Association’s Council of the Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar (the “Council”), the Law School’s traditional full-time program of instruction meets the state educational requirements for licensure in all fifty states of the United States of America, as well as the District of Columbia, American Samoa, Puerto Rico, the Northern Mariana Islands, Guam, and the U.S. Virgin Islands. There are no U.S. states or territories for which the curriculum for the Law School’s traditional full-time program does not meet the state educational requirements for professional licensure or certification, nor are there any U.S. states or territories for which Lincoln Memorial University has not yet made a determination regarding whether the Law School’s full-time curriculum meets the state educational requirements for professional licensure or certification.

The Law School has received an acquiescence from the Council to offer its part-time hybrid program of legal education, which exceeds the number of distance education credit hours currently permitted under ABA Standards absent such an acquiescence. Graduates of the Law School’s part-time hybrid program will satisfy most jurisdictions’ current legal education requirements and thus be eligible for admission to the bar in most states. The Law School cannot guarantee, however, that all states will honor the acquiescence that the Council has granted the Law School. Notably, the attorney licensing authorities in the states of New York and Alabama restrict admission to the bar of graduates from programs exceeding the number of distance education credit hours permitted under published ABA Standards. This includes programs, like the Law School’s, which are operating with an acquiescence to exceed published limitations. Applicants to the bar in those jurisdictions should check on whether procedures are in place whereby restrictions on distance education credits may be waived.

Further, Lincoln Memorial University advises all applicants to the Law School’s part-time hybrid program to check with the jurisdictions in which they may seek admission to the bar to ensure that graduation from the part-time hybrid program will make them eligible to take the bar exam and be admitted to the bar in those jurisdictions. Contact information for all relevant bar admissions agencies is available through the National Conference of Bar Examiners.

The State Licensing Requirements should indicate if the program curriculum Meets the requirements in these states and US Territories or Does NOT Meet the requirement in these states and US Territories. For students coming from a state or territory that does not meet requirements, the student can only be admitted and enrolled if they sign an attestation that they plan to seek employment in another specified state.
