

Jacques Debrot has a PhD from Harvard University and chairs the department of Literature and Language at Lincoln Memorial University. He was born in New York City and has published many poems and short stories. Among the awards he has received for his writing are two Pushcart Prize nominations and the Thorn Prize for Short Fiction. He loves the outdoors and the Cumberland Mountains and is an avid trail runner and a novice, but improving, kayaker.

