

Patrick Wensink is Assistant Professor of Creative Writing and Director of the Mountain Heritage Literary Festival. He is the bestselling author of six books, including Fake Fruit Factory (Curbside Splendor Publishing, 2015), which was named one of the best novels of the year by NPR. His nonfiction appears in The New York Times, Esquire, Oxford American, and many others. He is also the author of two children's books, Go Go Gorillas and Gorillas Go Bananas (HarperCollins, 2017 & 2018). He holds an MFA in creative writing from Portland State University. He lives in Harrogate, TN with his wife and son.

